The court holds that, owing to the talked of here, and has declared in the hearing of a number of city officials that he would never vote on one, was reinforced in his opinion on Friday by an investigation of the state constitution and consultation with several lawyers on the point that he could not be compelled to use the machine in voting for state officers and for members of the general assembly. Mr. Pitcher sposition is that the registrars are compelled by the state consultation to have elled by the state constitution to have ballots on hand and to allow the elec-tors to vote by ballot if they so demand.

Registrar Tyler D. Guy said that he had heard of the claim that Mr. Pitcher was making on the voting machine question, but that he did not believe it would do the city engineer any good to demand a ballot. The registrars were going to have ballots on hand, said Mr. Guy, but they would be used only in the emergency of the machine breaking down.

Attorney Perkins objected to the form of the decision which Judge Case handed down recently. The decision continued the injunction against the tearing down of Dr. Dunn's apartments until the points in dispute were settled by process appropriate to the matter.

Mr. Perkins thought the injunction should be continued like any other until the first Tuesday in November and not simply until the close of the present summary process proceeding. His claim was that the injunction should be in force even though execution of summary process is ordered by Justice Hickey Saturday.

Major Hull said he understood that Judge Case's idea was not to interfere with any other proceeding and the gudge said that it was. The judge took the papers in the case.

Most of the programme was taken up with reports from the various societies and committees included in the association. Mrs. George W. HIGH COST OF LIVING

DUE TO SHRINKING DOLLAR Dividends on Watered Stock Also Play a Part, Says Robert LaMonte to Norwich local of the socialist party held a rally Friday night in their head-variers. The chairman was Fred Holdsworth, candidate for representative from the town of Norwich. He introduced the chief speaker of the evening. Robert Rives LaMonte of New London, the socialist candidate for lieutenant governor.

Mr. Holdsworth referred, to the work that Mr. LaMonte had done for work that Mr. LaMonte had done for the socialist and trade union movement in the line of economics and research work, and said that his work was deeply appreciated by the members of the party.

There were about 75 present, the room being filled. Mr. LaMonte had a warm reception when he arose to speak and said in opening that all present seemed to be secialists/and that he would speak more along the line of seonomics than politics. He said that he had not come to sling mud at the old parties, as they were quite busy doing that themselves each blaming the other for the high cost of living and a possible coming panic. He busy doing that themselves each blaming the other for the high cost of living and a possible coming panic. He said that neither the republican nor democratic parties was to blame for the high cost of living, but the fundamental cause of the high cost of living was the shrinkage value of the dollar from 1905 to 1910. More gold was produced in that time and at less cost than there was in existence before 1850. With less labor in the dollar, the dollar was worth less, as labor is the true standard of value in all proceeds. As less labor was required in the production of gold and less would be required in the future as gold producing machinery was being perfected, the cost of living must go still higher. For proof of this he pointed out that the cost of living had sone up in all civilized countries under all kinds of tariff or no tariff, so that there must be a general fundamental character. so that there must be a general fun-damental cause. The watering of stocks in all industries is also a con-tributory cause of the high cost of liv-ing, as one must pay dividends on wa-tered dock, which come out of the products and the consumers must pay. products and the consumers must pay. The only remedy that will bring down the high cost of living is for the state to bring the unemployed people of the cities into contact with the unemployed land. The state should operate large farms on the latest scientific princi-ples and sell the product direct to the plea and sell the product direct to the people.

Upon being asked how he thought socialism would be brought about, Mr. LaMonte said that he expected the radical movement to grow and gradually become more radical, forcing the state to extend its powers and gradually absorb one industry after another until what manufactories were left would beg the state to take them over. He said that the socialists should roll up as large a vote as possible. over. He said that the socialists should roll up as large a vote as possible, and show the people that the present systems must be abolished and be replaced by the socialist state when all would have the right to work, which would mean that all would have the right to live and poverty, crime and destitution would disappear.

The members of the socialists should be presented by the property of th The members of the party were well pleased with the address.
